

THE DOUG RISNER PRIZE FOR EMERGING DANCE RESEARCHERS

Call for Papers
Deadline June 1, 2016

Journal of Dance Education (JODE)
National Dance Education Organization

The Doug Risner Prize for Emerging Dance Researchers recognizes excellence in dance research and emerging scholars who conduct outstanding dance inquiry. Unpublished scholars submitting original empirical research study manuscripts to the Journal of Dance Education are eligible for prize consideration. The article will be published in JODE, along with information identifying the author as the prize recipient. The recipient also receives an honorarium that may be used for NDEO membership, conference costs, Online Professional Development Institute fees, and other professional services.

This annual prize honors Dr. Doug Risner, Editor Emeritus of JODE, in recognition of his outstanding leadership as Editor, passionate commitment to research and research education, and his generous support of the National Dance Education Organization. Dr. Risner has published over 100 papers, essays, journal articles, and book chapters, and won the NDEO Outstanding Dance Education Researcher Award in 2014.

Dr. Risner's research interests are wide and varied within Dance Education; they are suggested here as possible paper topics. However, applicants are welcome to submit research papers (qualitative, quantitative, or mixed method) on dance education topics in addition to those listed here. Papers should be designated as Feature Articles when submitted. Length: 5,000-8,000 words including references.

- Dance and gender
- Boys and adolescent males in dance
- Social foundations in dance education
- Humanizing dance pedagogy
- The sociology of dance training and education
- Dance administration
- Curriculum: theory, design, and online pedagogy
- Teaching artists
- Dance teacher preparation

Please submit online via ScholarOne by June 1, 2016. Please read the guide for ScholarOne authors before making a submission, which can be found on the NDEO website at www.ndeo.org/jode.

Winner will be notified by August 1, 2016.

Questions may be addressed to Dr. Wendy Oliver, Editor: woliver@providence.edu
